THE RIGHT SHADES FOR YOUR FACE SHAPE

Heart You want to create balance in a heart-shaped face. Choose styles that minimize the top of the face and create the illusion of width on the bottom.

- Gucci Square sunglasses with diamond texture. $325, gucci.com
- Tom Ford Matteo plastic aviator sunglasses with tubular metal insets and cutout bridge. $380, neimanmarcus.com

Square “The more angular your face is, the more round your frames should be,” says wardrobe stylist Scarlett De Bease of Scarlett Image in Waccabuc, NY.

- Madewell Han Kjøbenhavn timeless sunglasses. $134, madewell.com
- The Row Leather-wrapped oversized round frame sunglasses by Linda Farrow for The Row. $445, barneys.com

Oval “This is the ideal face shape,” says De Bease. Any style looks good so go ahead and try one of summer’s biggest trends like Wayfarers or wraparounds.

- Carrera CA5002/S. $99, Solstice, The Westchester, White Plains, NY.
- Oakley Obsessed in polished black/grey. $130, oakley.com

Round “Choose angular styles like cat eyes,” says De Bease. The harder lines of these frames add definition and create a longer profile.

- Kate Spade Della/S in mint. $138, solsticesunglasses.com
- Karen Walker Anytime cat eye with glitter. $280, Barneys New York, 212-826-8900.

Update your classic aviators with reflective lenses.

Looks Good on Everyone The classic aviator frame works well on every face shape “as long as you keep proportion in mind,” says De Bease. “For a larger face, choose a larger frame; a smaller face should have a smaller frame.”

- Ray-Ban Aviator (RB3025) in gold frame with blue mirror lens. $154.95, sunglasshut.com
